4.1 Street Trees in Pounamu Place, Pegasus – David Mills and Alan Williams

D Mills spoke to the Board noting he was a resident of Pounamu Place, Pegasus and he represented other residents of Pounamu Place, Pegasus. Residents were concerned with 30 elm trees planted in Pounamu Place. The root structure and size of the trees made them unsuitable for the street. Some of the trees were planted only two metres directly opposite property gates. The trees reached a maturity after ten years and should be planted a minimum of six metres from fences and structures. Elm trees tend to have shallow root systems and trees were easily damaged by soil compaction. The trees in Pounamu Place were planted 12 years ago and were still growing.

One of the trees blew over recently and residents were concerned as the tree looked healthy, exactly like the others, prior to falling over. The tree came down over the public walkway used mainly by school children and young families. The trees all looked healthy however there was now fear that another may come down in the same way and injure passersby, damage homes or parked cars. Concern that the elms may have Dutch Elm disease which hollowed the interior of the trunk while the outer tree still looked healthy, as the centre of the fallen tree was hollowed out.

The tree roots were also lifting the concrete paths creating trip hazards for pedestrians. Council workers had painted the raised concrete with fluro twice which was only visible during the day and not at night, or during leaf fall in autumn making the footpath hazardous. There was also concern that the roots would be lifting the property paths and getting into house foundations.

The paths were only going to get worse and at what cost to the Council and residents for ongoing repairs. The falling leaves in the winter and seeds in spring made the footpaths and roads slippery to walk along, hiding the tripping hazards of the raised concrete paths. The residents would like to know what steps the Council were going to take to make the paths safe and what assurance they could give residents that the other trees were safe and would not fall over.

Another resident raised that the trees were also in Barnes and Mary Ellen Streets.

R Mather asked if the residents wanted to retain the trees. D Mills explained that 19 of the households in Pounamu Place wanted the trees removed and replaced with more suitable trees.

P Redmond enquired if the trees had been inspected under a health and safety programme. G MacLeod noted that staff could do another visual assessment of the trees.

R Mather asked whether the trees stayed or went, what could be done about the footpaths. K LaValley noted that utilities and roading staff would investigate in conjunction with greenspace staff.

A decision was made to take the Public Excluded section of the meeting at this time however the minutes reflect the order of the agenda to mitigate confusion.
